At ages seven and eight, Navid and Omid Derakhshan began working for their father's construction and development company. Since then, the two entrepreneurs have been business partners. Navid earned a Biology degree from Emory University, where he was in the top 96% of his class. He followed his passion for creativity and his love of the outdoors by starting their landscape design and architecture company, Outdoor Makeover. Omid's passion for building drove him to become a Civil Engineer from Georgia Tech with highest honors. Omid now puts his intellect and diligence into new constructions, developments, high-end interior and exterior renovations and designing outdoor living spaces.

Navid and Omid hold several state licenses for their industries, including the real estate industry. They contribute their entrepreneurial mindset and their unique business strategies to the solid and steady growth of their businesses. One of their secrets to being successful in business lies in the overall customer experience they provide: superior quality and exceptional service backed up by their extensive warranty programs.

Angie's List named Outdoor Makeover "Contractor of the Year" and they were awarded "Designer of the Year" by Houzz. They are also TrustDale certified. Their companies have won more than 300 awards. They continue to impress clients by not only reaching their expectations, but surpassing them every single time.

"They definitely care about the relationship with the customer and the work they do is completed to the utmost satisfaction of their clients."
